

USA TODAY

03.12.14

A GANNETT COMPANY

'MAD MEN' READY TO FLY

As Season 7 nears, we chat with the creator, 1, 3D

NFL
Teams paying potent young players rather than veteran statisti

AMC

USA TODAY INVESTIGATION

FUGITIVES NEXT DOOR

186,000 FUGITIVES ESCAPE BY CROSSING STATE LINES

More than 3,300 accused of sexual assaults, robberies, even murder, aren't pursued

Brad Heath

@bradheath
USA TODAY

PHILADELPHIA For a man on the run from charges that he sexually assaulted a 14-year-old girl, Thomas Terlecky has surprisingly little to fear from the law. The police here know where to find him, but they will not go get him.

Florida. As recently as November, police handcuffed Terlecky and called Philadelphia authorities to tell them their fugitive had been found. But just like every time before, the authorities in Philadelphia refused to take him back.

Across the United States, police and prosecutors are allowing tens of thousands of wanted felons — including more than

"He got away with it. That makes me sick to my stomach. It's disgraceful."

across the country, leaving crimes unpunished, they outraged and the public a

Each fugitive's case is cled in a confidential F base that police use outstanding warrants. In of those cases, police i that they would not sr

EILEEN BLA